FINAL DETAILED CELEBRATION PLANS FOR VISITACION VALLEY ARE MADE AT BUSINESS MEET

TO CONSTRUCT VALLEY MOTOR PORT FOR FAIR

Cost Is $125,000—Work Is Scheduled To Start In Ninety Days

George Allen, president of the Visitacion Valley Improvement Club, announced to his organization, Monday of this week, that the City Planning Commission had passed favorably upon the application of the Interstate Motor-Ports, Inc., to build a de luxe motor court on the Crocker estate site located on the Bayshore highway at San Bruno avenue. The Valley Improvement Club had unanimously endorsed the proposal as presented by Albert Jason, president of the Interstate Motor-Ports, Inc., at their regular meeting, Monday of last week, and it was with enthusiasm that they learned the building of the Motor-Port would begin within the next ninety days.

DUPLEX COTTAGES

The first development of the project calls for the construction of twenty-eight duplex cottages of modern design and appointment. The architects are Samuel Lighter, Hyman and A. Appleton. Cost of this development which will be known as San Francisco Unit No. 1 will be in the neighborhood of $125,000, exclusive of concession buildings.

This unit will be the first motor-port of a chain of motor-ports which will be built by the Interstate Motor-Ports, Inc., on the highways connecting San Francisco with New York. The motor-ports will be located about 250 miles apart from each

'SWING PARADE' TO CLOSE RUN AFTER JUNE 5

"Blind Alley" Will Be Next Play Produced Here By Federal Theater

Breaking all Western regional Federal Theater records for attendance, the long run of "Swing Parade," the gala musical revue at the Alcazar directed by Max Dill, will be closed Saturday night, June 5, to make room for "Blind Alley," the second touring company of the Federal Theaters to take the road.

"Swing Parade" has exceeded all expectations both in popularity and box office receipts. Its big cast of seventy-five actors, its many novel departures from the usual musical show, the appeal of its music have done more to win the favor of the San Francisco theater going public than any other production presented to date. Max Dill, one of the authors of the book together with Nat Goldstein, the composer, and Richard Melville have announced that they will start work on another play immediately "Swing Parade" has closed.

"Blind Alley" comes to the Alcazar after having phenominal success in New York and Los Angeles. It is a story of an unregenerate criminal and a master of psychology, the latter forced to become host to the outlaw. The outcome of the session, during which the psychologist puts his science to a test, is amazing in the extreme and productive of one of the most unusual and interesting plays of the year, according to advance reviews.

JOLSON AT FIESTA

Al Jolson and George Parks, known in radio as "Parkyakarkas," will attend the grand labor ball in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium on May 29 during the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta.

Mayor Rossi, Portugese And Spanish Consuls Will Attend Ceremonies

A. J. Nardi served as chairman of the evening for the regular meeting of the Visitacion Valley Improvement Club, held at hte Woodmen of the World Hall, Monday of this week. The business meeting was chiefly concerned with the announcement of final details and plans for the gala Visitacion Valley Fiesta to be staged here from Sunday of this week until Wednesday evening of next week.

The impressive Sunday morning pageant commemorating the discovery of Visitacion Rock will be attended by a number of national and international notables. Participating in the ceremony will be Mayor Angelo Rossi, the Honorable Miguel Pizzaro, consul general of Spain, and the Honorable G'Armas do Amaral, consul of Portugal. Local groups who have feature parts in the Sunday pageant include: Visitacion School Glee Club, pastors of the St. James Presbyterian Church and Visitacion Church, members of the

WORKMEN SPEED TREASURE ISLE SITE TO FINISH

Reclamation Of Site For 1939 Fair Now 95 Per Cent Completed

Uncle Sam's new possession, the island which is being reclaimed from the bottom of San Francisco Bay as a site for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, this week neared completion as thousands of workmen sped the task of building the World Fair site.

HUGE TASK

Reclamation of the 400 acre Treasure Island, at a cost of $3,803,000, is now 95 per cent completed. This task has entailed the placing of twenty million cubic yards of black sand and other material inside a three mile sea-wall which was built with 280,000 tons of rock. The deadline for completion of the island is July 1.

Already, towers and palaces of a modern Atlantis are rising on Treasure Island. Construction of the first two main exhibit palaces, at a cost of $800,000, is now approximately 70 per cent completed. After the close of the exposition, these two palaces will be permanent hangars for the metropolitan airport planned on Treasure Island.

OTHER WORK

Other construction on which work is going forward on the island includes: permanent administration building, cost $800,000; ferry slips, $450,000; block of exhibit palaces, $7,000,000. In addition, work has just been started on a $600,000 six lane highway connection linking Treasure Island to the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge. Total cost of the pre-exposition construction program is $16,000,000.

San Mateo Jaysees Set National Marks

San Mateo Junior College will send its track team to the Junior P. A. meet which is being held at San Jose State this year. The meet, Saturday of this week, will end the season for the Mateans though there is a chance that one or more of the junior college stars may be taken east by the Olympic Club for a national meet.

At Stanford, Saturday of last week, San Mateo placed fourth with 13 points in the senior P. A. meet. San Mateo defeated the other junior college entries and also set two national jaysee marks with Cecil Cole's 4 minute and 16 seconds for the mile, and Bill Wohle's shot mark of 51 feet and three quarters of an inch. Cole's time was the fastest mile ever run on the Stanford track.

The entire west will be co-hosts at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

MAJESTIC UNDER VIEW OF SPAN

THE GATE BRIDGE OPENS

Among the many wonders of the world within the borders of California, another takes its place this week—a new, man made colossus of steel and concrete that brings realization, at last, to a dream decades old.

It is the bridge across the Golden Gate, the greatest single suspension span in the world; and the bay cities, with the whole West participating, are observing its opening in a celebration appropriately immense. From May 27 to June 2 it lasts, with the United States battle fleet and its air squadron taking part, with colorful cavalcades from Canada and Mexico, with parades and pageants, regattas and speeches and ballroom festivities.

What a bridge this is!

Its towers of steel are the highest—746 feet, the tallest structures west of New York. Its sweeping cables, gracefully suspending a roadbed 246 feet above water, are the longest ever spun.

For sheer size and majesty, it dwarfs such other engineering triumphs as the George Washington bridge across the Hudson, the Ambassador bridge at Detroit, and even either of the two suspension spans of its neighbor, the San Francisco Bay Bridge.

The rest of the world, outdone, looks on as the Golden Gate Bridge opens. So do the men who wouldn't listen when experts said, "It can't be done;" and perhaps looking on also are the ghosts of those dreamers who first envisioned such a bridge more than half a hundred years ago and were laughed at for their dreams.

Vagabond Sketches

SEASICKNESS—Not many volumes of prose or poetry have been devoted to one of man's discomforts on the ocean—seasickness.

The reason for neglect in treating this subject is, in all probability, the vague manner in which such a theme might be written. But laying aside all discourse on cause and effect of the ailment, we attempt to present some facts in the form of a short short essay.

Dispite the assertion of some medical men, who claim seasickness is merely a mental condition, we are forced to believe, by observation, that it is a tangible reality. And the cure? Only time and "terra firma."

SHORT STORY—Smoke, product of the busy city leaves behind it dirt and girt—So it's best to live in the country.

TODAY'S EPIGRAM—Man, like a tree, can grow straight and strong or very crooked.

Bridge-Builders Memorial

The bridge builders who lost their lives on Golden Gate Bridge will not be forgotten at the San Francisco Fiesta, May 27 to June 2. On May 30, memorial services of a simple religious nature will be held, the net receipts of which will go to the bereaved families.

Festive Atmosphere At Bayshore City

Bayshore people are enjoying a fine community fiesta this week. Colorful street decorations have enlivened the local atmosphere. This fiesta has been made possible by the support of loyal local groups.

Among the donors to the celebration have been: Bayshore City Council, Bayshore Sanitary District, Bayshore Fire Department, Easley and Brassie, South San Francisco Savanger Company, the Town and County Kennel Club, 7-Mile House, Geneva Club and Richfield Oil Station.

To Stage Annual Benefit Review

The third annual dance revue under the auspices of Community Hospital in San Mateo will take place, Friday and Saturday of next week, at the Burlingame High School.

Proceeds will go to the benefit fund at Community Hospital to be used for the welfare and special needs of patients.

Patricia Quigley and Warren Sawyer will sing a duet in the Pageant of Spring. John Collins will head a group of young men in the comedy skits. There will be feature ballets and ensembles.

Queen Of Celebration To Be Coronated At Ball This Evening

Bayshore City Fiesta, staged by the city council and civic organizations of Bayshore and Brisbane to commemorate the opening of the Golden Gate Bridge, sees its climax this week end with a full two days program of varied events.

This evening the queen of the Bayshore Fiesta will be coronated at the grand ball, Voters League Hall, 125 Accacia street. Ethel Higgins, nine year old, will be crowned tonight. Dressed in regal robes, and accompanied by four attendants, she will accept the scepter from Councilman Parker, acting mayor of Bayshore and honorary chairman of the fiesta. The attendants are Jane Peters, Bernice Shaw, Evelyn Borglia and Lorraine Cook. All will be garbed in robes of satin.

CHOOSE QUEEN

Judge Brown was in charge of the selection of queen and attendants for the event. The contest was conducted in this manner: each girl who wanted to enter the contest registered

AMERICAN FLAG PRESENTED TO CITY COUNCIL

Board Holds Special Session To Receive Gift From Voters League

At an impressive ceremony, Tuesday evening of this week, the Bayshore City council was presented a beautiful American flag and standard by the Voters League. Councilmen were asked to meet in special session in order that the flag could be appropriately presented.

After adjournment of the council meeting fitting addresses were made by officials and guests. Musical selections were offered by Micky Lawson, Jerry Toich and Councilman Parker.

Will Be Executive

Ernest A. Rolison

Tomorrow County Executive Kellogg will sit for the last time in his current official position for this county. Budget Director Ernest A. Rolison, takes office after the Memorial Day holiday. Rolison is expected to make several changes in county administrative policies.

Pedro Point Work Nears Completion

Work is progressing rapidly on the Ocean Shore highway with only a short rock cut to be made at Devil's Slide on Pedro Point before the section between Rockaway Beach and Montara will be completed, the county right of way agent reported this week following a survey of the coastside.

The new section probably will be open early in the summer.

ABOLISH OFFICE OF PUBLICITY MAN IN COUNTY

Planning Adviser Finished Work He Was Engaged To Do Says Board

On July 1 two appointive officers of San Mateo County will be dismissed, it was announced this week by the Board of Supervisors.

No provision has been made in the new salary budget for continuance of the county publicity department. It is reported that the board unanimously agreed that the full time position of county publicity director is not required. The equivalent of the salary of the publicity director, $3000, probably will be set up in an advertising fund which will form the nucleus of a fund to finance county participation in the Golden Gate International Exposition. Such moneys will be administered by the director of the San Mateo County Floral Fiesta, it was announced.

ELIMINATE PLANNER

The office of Hugh Pomeroy, San Mateo County planning adviser of state reknown, has been eliminated in the interest of economy, the Board of Supervisors announced this week.

The $2400 a year post has been held by Pomeroy since 1931 when the county planning commission was created. During this period he introduced a master plan of zoning and has played an important part in the development and beautification of the county.

The chairman of the board said the Pomeroy dismissal was in no way any reflection on his ability, but explained that Pomeroy was hired in the capacity of an adviser and "his work is now completed."

HI CORNERSTONE LAYING DRAWS BIG ATTENDANCE

Newspapers, List Of Civic Leaders, Officials And Programs Sealed Up

Several hundred friends of Jefferson Union High School and many alumni members of the school attended the impressive cornerstone laying ceremonies for the new gymnasium and swimming pool last Sunday afternoon.

Principal James Ferguson presided and introduced Mrs. Stella M. Jensen, clerk of the board, who greeted those present on behalf of the Board of Education. Mrs. Jensen stated in part: "Our youth of today, the citizens of tomorrow, will gather within these walls and, through personal contact with the splendid members of our faculty, they will receive that cultural training which will better equip them to take their places in world affairs."

GUEST SPEAKER

The main speaker of the afternoon was Dr. Dexter, state superintendent of public instruction, who emphasized the physical education in the life of the youth of today. Dr. Dexter, because of his given personal interest in his special field of work, made the trip to the bay area especially to be present at the cornerstone laying.

Pansy Jewett Abbott, county superintendent of schools, was present and expressed words of appreciation and gratitude to the district for the fine progress made in their program which will mean so much to this section of San Mateo County.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the high school band and the a capella choir under the direction of Thomas J. Stevens.

Site of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition has been reclaimed from the floor of San Francisco Bay.

War Admiral, Jock Worked Out Perfect Getaway at Barrier

JUST a note to one of the old folks at home:

Dear Red—Pop Kurtsinger's wildly thumping heart burst six buttons off his vest when his boy Charley came galloping down to the wire atop the winner. The beauty and chivalry of Kaintucky were so elated that they only jacked up prices 500 per cent for the firemen who missed the first train out, but—

Well, Red, that's why an admiring friend who hasn't seen you for a long while is writing this letter. It was a swell Derby, that one so easily won by War Admiral, but there was something missing. That was you, Pop. All the while that little brown colt—really he's little only as compared to such big red giants as yourself—was shaking those four feet to make every post a winning one I kept whispering to myself. What I was saying was, "Gee, but I wish his old man could see him now."

Lots of other folks were saying the same thing, too, Red. You needn't think because you're stuck off in a green pasture a couple of counties away that honest-to-goodness people have forgotten you. Ever since the race was run I've heard hundreds of them saying the same thing. "My, my," they've been saying, "he looked just like Man o' War, didn't he?" Actually they're a little wrong on that, though, Red, if they're speaking of mere outward appearances while the kid's standing in his st... Maybe—because of what I hear about the way you've been spending your last fifteen years you're sort of like the old woman in the shoe and get mixed up about the younger ones now and then—I'd better set you right about him.

Man o' War

War Admiral, this kid of yours, has a nice easy stride, pretty close knit conformation and may be a trifle light in back. Carries his head like you but otherwise he takes after his mammy's family in looks. His mammy, you may have to be reminded, was a little mare named Brushup and her daddy was Sweep.

Once out on the track, though, you can't miss him as a Man o' War. Walks up to the barrier just like you did, kind of proud and disdainful and wondering at the nerve of those other gee gees even thinking they could run along with him for money, marbles or the next peck of oats.

Just like you he's full of pep and vinegar at the barrier, too, but I wouldn't take too seriously those stories you may read about him being a bad actor there. Actually what happened there was that your kid and Pop Kurtsinger's boy, Charley, were giving the first evidence of that perfect teamwork which won them the race in the second best time in Derby history.

What Charley and your kid really were doing at the post when everybody thought they were cutting up was thinking and acting. They were wheeling in and out of their stall because they wanted to be on their toes when the break came. If they'd stood there nice and flatfooted maybe it would have looked nice in a book of manners but where would they have been when the wire went up? Probably still standing there, eh Red? Or maybe piled up over the fence in the infield.

So Charley and your kid were putting on the act. They figured that if they were a little tough lining up the starter'd make his move as soon as he got them in line for once. That's what happened and from then on it was just like as if you were doing it yourself, Red. Heelfly, who's always a mite impatient at the start, maybe had a head lead for the first hundred yards. After that your kid was never in trouble.

Maybe Kurtsinger did go to bat on him once, turning into the straightaway, but it wasn't even necessary. Pompoon, who looked like a much better horse than he did in the Wood Memorial, was challenging then, but even if this son of Pompey hadn't been carried wide it wouldn't have made much difference. Your kid only won by two lengths but he won well in hand and he could have made it six.

Won at a good price, too, Red even considering the field of twenty was one of the best ever to start in Kentucky. Maybe $5.40 winners seem like long shots to you with your record, but 8 to 5's not peanuts.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

STEVE CULLINAN, possibly Princeton's best center in the past decade, has turned down a pretty offer to take Art Lane's place as coach of the Harvard Scrubs. No more aid for the Crimson on how to stop the Tiger attack—as last fall—for Lane graduates from Harvard Law and will take a job with a New York firm . . . Val Picinich, Clide Dudley, Walter Shaner and Frank DeHaney, all of whom performed in baseball's big-time short seasons ago, are members of the Elizabeth branch of the Motion Picture Operators' union.

The Giants were not interested when Boston's Bees tried to peddle them First Baseman Buck Jordan, recently traded to the Reds . . . Manager Jimmy Wilson had a swell article called "Fixing the Phillies" in a recent issue of a sports magazine . . . Coach Fritz Crisler is reported as feeling the 1937 Princeton football team will be fuller of fight than any Tiger team since 1932 . . . Leon Cadore, the Brooklyn pitcher who hurled 26 innings one day, now is associated with a Jamaica track bookie.

Names alike in sports:

Jim Crowley, fight referee—Jim Crowley, Fordham football coach.

Jack Doyle, Irish heavyweight—Jack Doyle, Broadway billiard and betting magnate.

Lew Raymond, Washington welterweight — Lew Raymond, fight matchmaker.

Ben Johnson, prelim featherweight — Ben Johnson, Columbia sprinter.

Sandy MacDonald, Texas heavyweight—Sandy MacDonald, Duluth Herald sports.

Moon Mullins, Indiana featherweight—Moon Mullins, former Notre Dame football star now coach at Loyola university.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, once was a champion bicycle rider. When he was seventeen years old he had won so many cash prizes in races at Indiana county fairs that he decided to become a business man. Opened a skating rink and went broke.

Class in Kentucky Derby history—The smallest purse ever offered in this stake was in 1875. The value to the winner then, the first year the race ever was run, was $2,850. In 1928 Mrs. John D. Hertz received $55,375 when her Reigh Count came home in front. From 1875 to 1895 the race was at a mile and a half. In 1896 it was changed to the present mile and a quarter. Falsetto, defeated in the 1879 renewal by Lord Murphy, sired three winners of the Derby. They were Chant, in 1894; His Eminence, in 1901, and Sir Huon, in 1906.

Grimm Is Happy Over Frey's Fine Showing

Charley Grimm gives Cubs dugout visitors rave notices about Lonny Frey, the young shortstop obtained last fall when a new era dawned in the Brooklyn front office. The Chicago manager particularly likes Lonny's competitive spirit—which, no doubt, is news to the Dodgers' directors. Max Uimer, who plays so well at left fullback for the Furriers Union Soccer club, is the brother of Ernest Ulmer, the famous film director—The poster advertising the International Amateur Boxing tournament at Milan, Italy, features the picture of a fighter whose tights are decorated with the flags of all the competing nations. The big blot on the poster at Stillman's gym is where the Nazi swastika used to be before Eric Seelig, barred from his native land, got through operating on it.

Charley Grimm

One of Casey Stengel's most prized possessions is a gold-headed cane. Got it from the University of Mississippi students as a reward for coaching their baseball teams for several weeks 20 springs or so ago—Chick Wergeles, the celebrated fight press agent, has numerous other claims to fame but likes best to relate that he has bought 23 automobiles in 23 years—Stu Saks, who operates a driving range near New York, has a new waistline cure. Waits until his customers have driven 1,000 balls. Then goes out and picks up all the balls.

P. Jay Donohue usually is given credit for nicknaming the Giants. The name came into being in the summer of 1885, when Chicago and New York were fighting for the championship, and was meant as a tribute to sterling playing deeds rather than to the size of the players. The Pirates were so named in 1888 when—in an attempt to beat the inter-league rules of that day—the Athletics failed to protect properly their rights to Louis Bierbauer, star second baseman. This made Bierbauer a free agent, and he was quickly persuaded to sign with Pittsburgh. It was a perfectly regular procedure under the existing rules and served the Philadelphia club right. But at the time there was high excitement and such widespread acrimony that one Philadelphia writer referred to Pittsburgh's part in the transaction as "an act of piracy on the baseball seas."

The Pirates are such nice, quiet fellas that nobody wants to beat them—and nobody will unless National league managers stop this spell of sweetness and light and bear down on the Pittsburghers.

CALIFORNIA
News of the Week

Legislature Adjournment Set

Sacramento.—Final adjournment of the Legislature was fixed as Friday, May 28, at 5 p. m. under terms of a resolution adopted by the Assembly. It is thought likely that the custom of stopping the clock will have to be resorted to and that actual adjournment will be many hours after the official time set.

Yosemite Park Chief Named

Washington.—The interior department has announced the appointment of Lawrence Campbell Merriam of Berkeley, Calif., as acting superintendent of Yosemite National Park and senior conservationist in the national park service. He is a son of Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Crime Increases in California

Crime is on the increase in California. A report issued by Clarence Morrill, chief of the State division of criminal identification and investigation, discloses that for the first three months of this year 13,753 crimes were committed in the State as compared to 11,965 in 1936. Every type of crime with the exception of assault to commit murder increased this year.

Campaign Against Drunk Driving

San Francisco.—Confronted with what officials said was a large increase in drunkenness arrests, police announced a drive to give maximum punishment to habitual offenders. In a 24-hour period, 145 men and several women were booked on intoxication charges. Police officials said this was the largest number in years, including New Year's Eve celebrants.

Baptists Debate Sex Teaching

Pasadena.—Stormy debate on sex education, politics and economics rocked the Southern California Baptist convention before it finally defined its attitude in resolutions and elected officers. The convention adopted a resolution that pastoral advisers should insist on segregation of boys and girls into separate groups when discussion of sex matters comes up at youth conferences.

Social Workers Elect Jenney

San Jose.—At the conclusion of its annual convention here, the California Conference of Social Workers elected Ralph E. Jenney, San Diego attorney and former chairman of the California State Relief Commission, as its president for the coming year. Jenney is a member of the executive council of the League for Civil Service Reform. Pasadena was selected as the meeting place for next year's convention.

Propose Woman for Governor

Coronado.—The California Federation of Womens Clubs, in annual convention here, launched a boom for Mrs. W. D. James of Hanford, the outgoing president of the federation, for governor of California. Dr. Louise M. Richter of Los Angeles, one of her sponsors, said "We need a woman as State executive and Mrs. James has such good common sense, I am sure she would be an excellent governor. California never has had a woman governor. After watching the performances of some of the man, I think it is time to put a woman in office."

Cal-Neva Resort Burns

Tahoe City.—Cal-Neva Lodge, famous gambling casino bisected by the California-Nevada State line at Lake Tahoe, burned to the ground with a loss in excess of $125,000. Insurance is placed at $35,000. Rendezvous of Reno divorce-seekers and motion picture stars, the lodge was constructed and publicized around the famous play, "Lightnin'," in which Frank Bacon starred on the stage and the late Will Rogers played in the screen version. The State line ran through the center of the dance floor and gambling was permitted only on the Nevada side.

Starve Amidst Riches

Vallejo.—A tale of privation and suffering by two sisters, Miss Alice Murphy, 85, and Miss Sarah Murphy, 76, was revealed when police broke into their home and found the first sister dead, an apparent victim of slow starvation, and the other sister unconscious. Although the home was bare of food, several pension checks, which came to one of the sisters as a retired teacher, lay on a table, while hundreds of dollars were found in trunks. The sisters had $100,000 in bank deposits and owned houses and business property. They had lived here for years in a home which was known as the mystery house.

Washington.—California has more than 1400 tourist camps, according to the Census Bureau, which reported that 9848 establishments in the nation were catering exclusively to tin-can tourists in 1935. More than a quarter of the camps are in four States—California, Texas, Colorado and Minnesota. Officials estimate the number of camps, influenced by the popularity of the auto trailer, has increased sharply since the census. The annual business done by the camps is estimated at more than $25,000,000.

Jaguar Throne at Chichen Itza Is Carefully Guarded

Spectacular Find in Ruined Mayan City

Washington. — Tourists who visit the ruined Mayan city of Chichen Itza in Yucatan are allowed to see—but not sit in—the polka-dotted red Jaguar throne recently discovered by archeologists.

The Carnegie institution of Washington, which conducted the excavations, calls this throne, and objects with it, "the most spectacular discovery of archeological specimens in original position ever made in the New World."

Mexican authorities, says the Carnegie institution, have wisely decided not to remove the throne from the place in the temple, exactly where Indian officials placed it centuries ago. A glass protects the throne, and lights have been installed so that the fresh colors and snarling face of the stone jaguar may be seen and appreciated.

Throne, Not an Altar.

The animal is painted red, with large apple-green spots of jade inlaid, and green jade eyes. Its flat back forms a throne seat, in the opinion of Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley of the Carnegie staff. Dr. Morley disagrees with the view that the jaguar was used as an altar.

The jaguar discovery was made in the famous temple called El Castillo, or the Castle, a ruined building perched on a lofty pyramid. Recent excavations have revealed that temple and pyramid were enlarged and built over by ambitious Indians. The visible ruins thus encase an earlier temple on its pyramid base. It was within the hidden temple, in an inner chamber, that the red stone jaguar was found well preserved.

A tunnel enables visitors to go to the inner stairway and climb the buried pyramid to the throne-room.

Curtains of Light Used to Measure Projectile Speed

Ottawa, Can.—An artillery shell crashing through invisible curtains of light is the newest means of determining the speed of projectiles developed by scientists at the National Research Laboratories here. Particular merit of the system is its portability which enables it to be used in the field and bring added accuracy to computations of range in actual combat.

Light beams, mirrors, photoelectric cells and sensitive recording mechanism are the equipment which makes possible the new development of Dr. D. C. Rose, physicist in the division of physics and electrical engineering of the Canadian laboratories.

Curtain of Light Used.

In effect the artillery shell passes down a narrow tunnel of light every 50 feet intersects a beam of light falling on a photocell. Momentarily the shell blocks off the light beam and this decrease in light intensity cuts down the electrical output of the cell. By an amplifying system this electrical change produces a permanent record on photographic film.

In field tests at the military camp at Petawawa, Dr. Rose set up metal frames whose upper and lower surfaces consisted of mirrors. A beam of light started from the bottom and was reflected back and forth across the space between the mirrors until its ray finally fell on a photoelectric cell concealed in a small box attached to the upper part of the frame. Thus the entire space within the frame was filled with a light beam which could be blocked out by the onrushing shell.

Airships to Make Own Ballast While Aloft

Berlin.—Zeppelins of the future will be able to take off without ballast, and once in the air will "manufacture" water, with a new reaction chamber invented by Ludwig Schirmer of this city.

The fundamental idea is very simple: hydrogen and hydrogen compounds are present in the airship's lifting gas; the air contains plenty of oxygen to combine with them and form water. Thus instead of valving gas and thereby losing valuable "lift," Herr Schirmer's invention will transform it into ballast, thus making a double gravitational gain. It is the reverse of lifting oneself by the bootstraps.

Counsel From All

Take counsel of him who is greater, and of him who is less, than yourself, and then recur to your own judgment.—Arab Proverb.

Naming the Baby

RULES for euphony in naming the new baby:

If the surname has one syllable, avoid a one-syllable first name. Example: Montgomery Smith rather than John Smith.

With a two-syllable last name, use either a one-syllable or three-syllable Christian name. John Hinton or Christopher Hinton rather than Frederick Hinton.

When the last name has three syllables, use either a one or two-syllable name. George Dougherty, but not Alexander Dougherty.

If a middle name is to be used it should contain more or fewer syllables than the surname, never the same.

Avoid overlapping consonants such as Bernard De Voto, or James Stephens.—Literary Digest.

Two new homes are planned for "The Gulch" near the Roddy water tank, just off Grande avenue. Like the other two homes in process of construction at the turn of Cliffton avenue, they are said to be for permanent, year round residents. If we keep on adding population, Pedro will soon be a real town. The big "cat" will lumber up the hill four more Sundays to complete the terracing of the mountain.

Dr. and Mrs. le Fevre have become "boat-minded" recently. They have purchased a pleasure cruiser and aremaking arrangements to spend their summer holidays cruising in the coast waters. Russell le Fevre, their son, is a skillful trumpet player. He serves as soloist in several musical dance groups in San Francisco and the bay region.

The little burro that grazes on the slope behind the Conroy stable lends the proper western touch to the scene. His countenance is mild and benevolent, but rumor states that this wily animal packs "a dynamite kick" if anyone molests him. And, further, it is said that the neighborhood boys who have tried to catch a ride on his back find that Mr. Burro chooses the road to be taken to suit his own whims.

First June Bride

Miss Della Mae Breakie

Miss Della Mae Breakie and Albert H. Boynton will have the first June, 1937, rendezvous with cupid in San Francisco.

They will be married at one minute past midnight of May 31, virtually one minute a. m. June 1.

The wedding will be a feature of the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta celebration and will take place at Dreamland Auditorium, Post and Steiner streets, San Francisco. Relatives and associates of the couple are cordially invited to attend the affair.

Miss Breakie, the daughter of a fine southern family, comes to the San Francisco Bay area with an enviable record of experience and accomplishment.

Reared in Wheeling, W. Va., she was gratuated from the Metropolitan High School there as valedictorian of her class. For two years she edited the high school newspaper and during her senior year edited the yearbook.

Two busy years of academic, journalistic and social activities followed at Graceland College, Lamoni, Iowa. Again Miss Breakie filled editorial berths. This time as associate editor of the college newspaper and editor-in-chief of the yearbook. As a student industrial employe she headed the college publicity department. Graduated with highest honors, May 1936. It was here that romance started when Boynton attended Graceland College in 1934-35.

Society reporter for the Wheeling Register, Wheeling, W. Va.; advertising manager for the Puget Sounder,

Albert H. Boynton

Bellingham, Wash., and ad writer for one of the largest fish and oyster companies of the Northwest are some of the journalistic positions which Miss Breakie has held. She is now employed by the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta as secretary of the Daly City office.

Order of Franciscans, and the Mothers Choral. Mrs. Viola Happy has written a poem, "Visitacion Valley," which will be read at the ceremony, and is published in this paper.

ORCHESTRA

A special feature of the Monday evening program of the Visitacion Valley Fiesta will be the eight piece official orchestra from San Francisco, under the directorship of Phil Sapiro Jr. All of this group will be in costume and provide excellent music for people of the community.

Mrs. Edward Armanino has coached a group of troubadors, 20 boys and girls who sing or play the accordion, who will provide songs and music at all hours and all places during the Valley fiesta.

For the educational part of their Monday evening program the Improvement club members witnessed the showing of two educational films. One, appropriately enough dealt with the construction of the Golden Gate Bridge, the other with Boulder Dam construction.

Refreshments and a social period were enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

San Mateo People Have High Income

After paying its rent and food bills, the average family in San Mateo County had more money left for spending in 1936 than did those in other counties in the three Pacific states of Washington, Oregon and California, according to a general survey of spending power made by Sales Management, New York.

The data shows that the San Mateo County family had an effective buying income, a figure which takes into account the cost of living, of $2762. This compared favorably with the $2240 for families throughout the country and the $2392 average for the Pacific states. California families, however, enjoyed buying incomes of $2485.

Living standards in San Mateo County compare favorably. There were 357 passenger cars for every 1000 residents during 1936 as against 182 in the country at large. Income tax returns were made by 77 out of each 1000 in the local county and by 34 in the rest of the country.

Protect Florists On Memorial Day

Warning that flower peddlers who operate on the highways on Memorial Day will be subject to arrest unless they first obtain sales tax permits, was issued this week by a member of the State Board of Equalization.

"This type of operator is competing with florists who operate under an all year overhead," the warning stated, "and as a matter of justice to established dealers, the state will strictly enforce the provisions restraining retail sales by persons who do not have a sales tax permit."

Community Center Gives Co-operation

The Visitacion Valley Community Center, together with the Visitacion Valley Improvement Club, Bon Vitas Club, Woodmen of the World, Neighbors of Woodcraft and other organizations are co-operating to make the Visitacion Valley Fiesta an outstanding event.

On Sunday the Visitacion Center Parents Assembly will take part in the ceremonies at Visitacion Rock.

In co-operation with all other groups, the Community Center will have open house Monday evening, at which time an interesting program will be presented, including free dancing and entertainment to be presented by Potrero Hill Neighborhood House Association.

On Tuesday evening the Visitacion Center will present an original pageant, "The Story of Visitacion," under the able leadership of Fred Enderlin.

PTA Has Vacation As Theme Of Meet

Since vacations are now uppermost in the minds of all, the Visitacion Valley P. T. A. is building the program for the meeting Tuesday of next week, around that thought.

The business meeting will be held at 1:30 p. m. followed by a talk on "Music as Recreation" by Harold Anderson of the WPA musical department. Miss Grace Thomas, WPA flute soloist, will provide music. Miss Pauline Zoloth, art director, Miss Grace Churcher, girls director and Allen Bell, boys director, of the Visitacion Valley Community Center will describe programs planned for the children of the community during the summer.

George Bernard Shaw once addressed a company as follows: "I suppose that you seldom think. Few people think more than two or three times a year. I have made an international reputation for myself by thinking once or twice a week."

other and will be situated either within or directly adjacent to the city limits of the respective community. The Interstate Motor-Ports, Inc., expects to have the entire chain completed by 1939, the exposition year. It then will enable motorists to make the round trip from New York to San Francisco in about twenty days, setting aside six days for San Francisco, for about $250. This amount includes housing and meals for two, gasoline, oil, grease jobs and change of oil every thousand miles.

The San Francisco project is an attempt to partially solve the housing problem for motorists coming daily into San Francisco, particularly during the exposition. The project as outlined will give employment to labor and will bring a large number of customers to the merchants in the neighborhood.

American business recovery is stressed by demand for exhibit space at the World Fair in 1939.

Visitacion Valley

By VIOLA HAPPY

Where the silver-stream-like highway
Lingers at an open door;
Where the old Franciscan Padres
Trod so many years before . . .

That is Visitacion Valley
Nature's Garden, walled around
By the hills that guard the treasure
That a pilgrimage had found.

At the doorway of this garden,
Waves from San Francisco Bay
Kissed the shore with rich abandon
Then, reluctant, ebbed away.

Sunshine filled, and flower scented,
Peacefully, the valley lay
Where the birds, with songs ecstatic,
Sang throughout each lovely day.

All the patient, brown-robed Padres
Loved this peaceful, cloistered spot;
Blessed the name of Visitacion
With the charm, "Forget-me-not."

Now the garden spot is peopled;
Showing Progress on its way
Through the homes that line the pavements
From the hillsides to the bay.

Through the scores of years in passing
People find that, though they roam
By the Padres' charm and blessing
Visitacion calls them Home.

Monterey Cavalry Arrive For Fiesta

Monterey Presidio Eleventh Cavalry Regiment—360 horses and 425 men—rode up the San Francisco Peninsula, Monday of this week, en route to San Francisco and the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta. The outfit clattered into the San Francisco Presidio Tuesday.

The mounted men traversed El Camino Real. They plan to participate in several parades and pageants and will start back down the peninsula on June 3.

Bayshore Legion Holds Open House

The Bayshore Post, American Legion, held open house and installation of officers in their quarters, Thursday night of this week.

The local Post was host to approximately 75 local and county guests. The Brisbane unit is the proud owner of a beautiful set of colors. It will be seen for the first time in the Bayshore Fiesta parade next Sunday.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never felt better." —Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright S. S. Van Dine
WNU Service

Zalia Graem glared defiantly at Vance.

"I asked Mrs. Garden what I could do for her, and she requested me to fill the water glass on the little table beside her bed. I went into the bathroom and filled it; then I arranged her pillows and asked her if there was anything else she wanted. She thanked me and shook her head; and I returned to the drawing-room."

"Thank you," murmured Vance, nodding to Miss Graem and turning to the nurse. "Miss Beeton," he asked, "when you returned last night, was the bedroom window which opens on the balcony bolted?"

The nurse seemed surprised at the question. But when she answered, it was in a calm, professional tone.

"I didn't notice. But I know it was bolted when I went out—"

He turned leisurely to Floyd Garden. "I say, Garden when you left the drawing-room yesterday afternoon, to follow Swift on your errand of mercy, as it were, after he had given you his bet on Equanimity, where did you go with him?"

"I led him into the dining-room." The man was at once troubled and aggressive. "I argued with him for a while, and then he came out and went down the hall to the stairs. I watched him for a couple of minutes, wondering what else I might do about it, for, to tell you the truth, I didn't want him to listen in on the race upstairs. I was pretty damned sure Equanimity wouldn't win, and he didn't know I hadn't placed his bet. I was rather worried about what he might do. For a minute I thought of following him upstairs, but changed my mind."

Vance lowered his eyes to the desk and was silent for several moments, smoking meditatively.

"I'm frightfully sorry, and all that," he murmured at length, without looking up; "but the fact is, we don't seem to be getting any forrader. There are plausible explanations for everything and everybody. Assuming—merely as a hypothesis—that anyone here could be guilty of the murder of Swift, of the apparent attempt to murder Miss Beeton, and of the possible murder of Mrs. Garden, there is nothing tangible to substantiate an individual accusation. The performance was too clever, too well conceived, and the innocent persons seem unconsciously and involuntarily to have formed a conspiracy to aid and abet the murderer."

Vance looked up and went on.

"Moreover, nearly everyone has acted in a manner which conceivably would make him appear guilty. There have been an amazing number of accusations. Mr. Kroon was the first victim of one of those unsubstantiated accusations. Miss Graem has been pointed out to me as the culprit by several persons. Mrs. Garden last night directly accused her son. In fact, there has been a general tendency to involve various people in the criminal activities here. From the human and psychological point of view the issue has been both deliberately and unconsciously clouded, until the confusion was such that no clear-cut outline remained. And this created an atmosphere which perfectly suited the murderer's machinations, for it made detection extremely difficult and positive proof almost impossible . . . And yet," Vance added, "some one in this room is guilty."

He rose dejectedly. I could not understand his manner: it was so unlike the man as I had always known him. All of his assurance seemed gone. Then he swung round quickly, and his eyes swept angrily about the room, resting for a brief moment on each one present.

"Furthermore," he said with a staccato stress on his words, "I know who the guilty person is!"

There was an uneasy stir in the room and a short tense silence which was broken by Doctor Siefert's cultured voice.

"If that is the case, Mr. Vance—and I do not doubt the sincerity of your statement—I think it your duty to name that person."

Vance regarded the doctor thoughtfully for several moments before answering. Then he said in a low voice: "I think you are right, sir." Again he paused and, lighting a fresh cigarette, moved restlessly up and down in front of the window. "First, however," he said stopping suddenly, "there's something upstairs I wish to look at again—to make sure . . . You will all please remain here for a few minutes." And he moved swiftly toward the door. At the threshold he hesitated and turned to the nurse. "Please come with me, Miss Beeton, I think you can help me."

The nurse rose and followed Vance into the hall. A moment later we could hear them mounting the stairs.

Fully five minutes passed, and then the tense silence of the room was split by a woman's frenzied and terrifying cry for help, from somewhere upstairs. As we reached the hallway the nurse came stumbling down the stairs, holding with both hands to the bronze railing. Her face was ghastly pale.

"Mr. Markham! Mr. Markham!" she called hysterically. "Oh, my God! The most terrible thing has happened!"

She had just reached the foot of the stairs when Markham came up to her. She stood clutching the railing for support.

"It's Mr. Vance!" she panted excitedly. "He's—gone!"

A chill of horror passed over me, and everyone in the hall seemed stunned.

In broken phrases, interspersed with gasping sobs, the nurse was explaining to Markham.

"He went over—Oh, God, it was terrible! He said he wanted to ask me something, and led me out into the garden. He began questioning me about Doctor Siefert, and Professor Garden, and Miss Graem. And while he talked he moved over to the parapet — you remember where he stood last night. He got up there again, and looked down. I was frightened—the way I was yesterday. And then—and then—while

"Miss Beaton, I Think You Can Help Me."

I was talking to him—he bent over, and I could see—oh, God!—he had lost his balance." She stared at Markham wild-eyed. "I reached toward him . . . and suddenly he wasn't there any more . . . He had gone over! . . ."

Her eyes lifted suddenly over our heads and peered past us transfixed. A sudden change came over her. Her face seemed contorted into a hideous mask. Following her horrified gaze, we instinctively turned and glanced up the hallway toward the drawing-room . . .

There, near the archway, looking calmly toward us, was Vance.

"I told you last night, Miss Beeton," he was saying, his eyes resting sternly on the nurse, "that no gambler ever quits with his first winning bet, and that in the end he always loses." He came forward a few steps. "You won your first gamble, at long odds, when you murdered Swift. And your poisoning of Mrs. Garden with the barbital also proved a winning bet. But when you attempted to add me to your list of victims, because you suspected I knew too much—you lost. That race was fixed—you hadn't a chance."

The nurse, who had been staring at Vance as if petrified, suddenly relaxed her hold on the stair railing, and her hands went to her face in a gesture of hopelessness and despair.

"Yes!" she cried at Vance; "I tried to kill you. Why shouldn't I? You were about to take everything—everything—away from me."

She turned quickly and ran up the stairs. Almost simultaneously Vance dashed forward.

"Quick, quick!" he called out. "Stop her before she gets to the garden."

But before any of us realized the significance of his words, Vance was himself on the stairs. Heath and Snitkin were just behind him, and the rest of us, stupefied, followed. As I came out on the roof, I could see Miss Beeton running toward the far end of the garden, with Vance immediately behind her. Twilight had nearly passed, and a deep dusk had settled over the city. As the girl leaped up on the parapet at the same point where Vance had stood the night before, she was like a spectral silhouette against the faintly glowing sky. And then she disappeared down into the deep shadowy abyss, just before Vance could reach her.

A half hour later we were all seated in the den again. Heath and the detectives had gone out immediately after the final catastrophe to attend to the unpleasant details occasioned by Miss Beeton's suicide.

Vance was once more in the chair at the desk. The tragic termination of the case seemed to have saddened him. He smoked gloomily for a few minutes. Then he spoke.

"I asked all of you to stay because I felt you were entitled to an explanation of the terrible events that have taken place here, and to hear why it was necess'ry for me to conduct the investigation in the manner I did. To begin with, I knew from the first that I was dealing with a very shrewd and unscrupulous person.

"I was inclined to suspect Miss Beeton almost from the first, for, although everyone here had, through some act, drawn suspicion upon himself, only the nurse had the time and the unhampered opportunity to commit the initial crime. She was entirely unobserved when she put her plan into execution; and so thoroughly familiar was she with every arrangement of the household, that she had no difficulty in timing her every step so as to insure this essential privacy.

"Subsequent events and circumstances added irresistibly to my suspicion of her. For instance, when Mr. Floyd Garden informed me where the key to the vault was kept, I sent her to see if it was in its place, without indicating to her where its place was, in order to ascertain if she knew where the key hung. Only someone who knew exactly how to get into the vault at a moment's notice could have been guily of killing Swift.

"Incidentally, one of my great difficulties in the case has been to act in such a way, at all times, that her suspicions would not be aroused at any point."

"Her motive was not clear at first," Vance explained, "and, unfortunately, I thought that by Swift's death alone she had accomplished her purpose. But after my talk with Doctor Siefert this morning, I was able to understand fully her whole hideous plot. Doctor Siefert pointed out definitely her interest in Floyd Garden, although I had had hints of it before. For instance, Floyd Garden was the only person here about whom she spoke to me with admiration. Her motive was based on a colossal ambition—the desire for financial security, ease and luxury; and mixed with this over-weaning desire was a strange twisted love. These facts became clear to me only today."

Vance glanced at young Garden.

"It was you she wanted," he continued. "And I believe her self-assurance was such that she did not doubt for a minute that she would be successful in attaining her goal."

Garden sprang to his feet.

"Good God, Vance!" he exclaimed. "You're right. I see the thing now. She has been making up to me for a long time; and, to be honest with you, I may have said and done things which she could have construed as encouragement—God help me!" He sat down again in dejected embarrassment.

"No one can blame you," Vance said kindly. "She was one of the shrewdest women I have ever encountered. But the point of it all is, she did not want only you—she wanted the Garden fortune as well. That's why, having learned that Swift would share in the inheritance, she decided to eliminate him and leave you the sole beneficiary. But this murder did not, by any means constitute the whole of her scheme."

Vance again addressed us in general.

"Her whole terrible plot was clarified by some other facts that Doctor Siefert brought out this morning during my talk with him. The death, either now or later, of Mrs. Garden was also an important integer of that plot; and Mrs. Garden's physical condition had, for some time, shown certain symptoms of poisoning. Of late these symptoms have increased in intensity. Doctor Siefert informed me that Miss Beeton had been a laborat'ry assistant to Professor Garden during his experiments with radio-active sodium, and had often come to the apartment here for the purpose of typing notes and attending to other duties which could not conveniently be performed at the university. Doctor Siefert also informed me that she had actually entered the household here about two months ago, to take personal charge of Mrs. Garden's case. She had, however, continued to assist Professor Garden occasionally in his work and naturally had access to the radio-active sodium he had begun to produce."

Vance turned his eyes to Professor Garden.

"And you too, sir," he said, "were, as I see it, one of her intended victims. When she planned to shoot Swift I believe she planned a double murder—that is, you and Swift were to be shot at the same time. But, luckily, you had not returned to your study."

"But—but," stammered the professor, "how could she have killed me and Woody too?"

Nature Esteemed by Chinese

Nature is close to the life of every Chinese, says Nature Magazine. All the feathered folk that go to make up the finishing touches for the charm of the out-of-doors are held in high regard by the laborer, the student, the water-shop keeper. More than mere incidents in the complete scheme of all things natural and of the earth, they were long ago given a rank of high importance in Chinese literature, art, and science. Perhaps, too, that is the secret of the abundance of bird life in China, in spite of the fact that the country has suffered periodic cycles of famine and scarcity since the dawn of history. Evidently this love has been so sincere that the birds have been preserved.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Economic Ironing—When ironing dispense with the ironing blanket and fold all the large things flat on the table, forming a "pad." On top of this I iron the small things, and when they are done, I find that the large things are quite nicely pressed.

Soft-Boiled Eggs—When soft-boiling eggs, put them in boiling water, boil for one minute and turn off flame, leaving eggs in the water for another four minutes. This prevents them from hardening and saves fuel.

Ladders in the Hosiery—Place your silk stocking over a glass tumbler when repairing a ladder. The light shows up the cross-threads, which can then be picked up easily with a fine steel crochet hook.

Making a Cushion—A useful flat cushion can be made from an old blanket. Fold it carefully to the size required, taking care that it is quite smooth and then secure the "layers" together with a few strong stitches. Slip it into a cover made from any pretty piece of material. These cushions are very useful when you want to make a chair higher, and are comfortable and firm to sit upon.

Bacon and Macaroni — Break two ounces of macaroni into small pieces and throw into quickly-boiling salted water. Simmer until tender. Fry two ounces of streaky bacon cut into small pieces, then drain the macaroni and add it to the bacon. Add seasoning, one-half ounce of butter, and a scrape of nutmeg, and stir over a low heat until the macaroni is brown. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with dry toast.

Cooking Cauliflower—To prevent it breaking while cooking, wrap loosely in muslin.

Better Bread — Home-made bread is lighter and keeps moist longer when mixed with skim-milk instead of water.

Using Skim-Milk—Skim-milk is excellent for milk puddings, providing a dessertspoonful of finely-grated suet is added to replace the missing fat.

Maple Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups fine oatmeal, one cup maple syrup, one quarter cup water, two and a half cups flour, one cup shortening, one teaspoon soda. Boil water and syrup together, add soda, then shortening. Cool slightly. Add to dry ingredients and allow the mixture to cool thoroughly before rolling out.

Liver Sandwich—Left-over liver can be converted into an excellent sandwich filling if it is rubbed through a sieve, well seasoned, and moistened with a little lemon juice and melted butter.

World's Gold

Improved methods have boosted Alaska's gold production to a new high of more than $18,000,000 in a single year, best since 1909. That sounds like a lot of money, but it's only small change when you talk about gold mining. Annual gold output of the world runs into real money—well over $1,000,000,000. South Africa supplies just about one-third of it.

Baden Kennel Club Opens Monday

Baden Kennel Club, popular greyhound racing oval at South San Francisco, will start its 1937 meeting Monday evening of next week. Hundreds of racing dogs have been "prepped" for the opening and Presiding Judge H. M. Barton assures the fans the same high caliber competition that has always characterized Baden meetings.

Orange avenue, and the road leading to the track have been widened and repaved to accommodate the heavy traffic.

A new top has been placed on the racing strip to assure fast, sure footing for the purebred racing dogs.

An innovation at the 1937 meeting will be the "safety hurdles" which promise to encourage kennel owners to enter top dogs in the barrier events. The new hurdles virtually eliminate the danger of injury to the dogs. The straw hurdles, formerly supported by a sturdy wooden base, are now held upright in flexible rubber standards which merely retards the progress of jumpers who fail to clear the barrier.

To Stage Yarmarka As Part Of Fiesta

More than 300 members of San Francisco's colorful and historic Russian colony will take part in the Yarmarka (Russian Fair) to be staged and costumed by the Russian Music Society in Sigmund Stern Grove, Nineteenth avenue and Sloat boulevard in San Francisco, May 29, 30 and 31.

According to Sergio Mihailoff, president of the Russian Music Society, the Yarmarka will be one of the spectacular features of the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta.

It will transform Stern Grove into a bit of Russia before the revolution and depict the part Russians have played in the history of San Francisco since they first settled at and built Fort Ross in 1812. Oldest, and one of the largest foreign colonies in San Francisco is that of Russian Hill whose residents retain many old-time Russian customs and much old-time sentiment.
